FOREWORD

In the pursuit of a higher education, the students of the Daytona Beach Junior College have become temporary innkeepers. Although the facilities of an inn may not be entirely adequate for the purposes of education, we hope to prove that it is the students and faculty, not the facade of a building, that makes up an institution of learning.

president

DR. JAMES M. SNYDER

It is seldom that a faculty and student body are privileged to start a new college program together. In that respect we are fortunate. This college will be what we make it. Let's make it such that we will always be proud to be associated with it, and such that it will always reflect honorably upon us.
